

WE WANT TO KNOW WHAT MATTERS MOST

We are looking for resident and family advisors to join focus groups on quality of life in long-term care homes.

BACKGROUND

Long-term care homes around the world are working to help residents live their best possible life. With your input on quality of life surveys, we have learned how well homes perform on several statements around quality of life, like how often you can eat your favorite foods or have time alone.

ABOUT THE FOCUS GROUPS

Your long-term care home has been tasked with running focus groups with resident and family advisors.

1. You will be tasked with working as a team to complete a survey on how important several statements are for quality of life in long-term care homes.
2. We will compare your responses with other groups, including residents, families, researchers, and leadership, and do our best to share the results with you.
3. This study will lead to advances in knowledge that can benefit your long-term care home and others.

This study has been reviewed and approved by a University of Waterloo and KU Leuven Research Ethics Board.
