Reopening of Staff Entrance

We are happy to let you know that Staff Entrance was re-opened on November 12, 2020.

The new staff entrance self-serve experience will require everyone's cooperation.

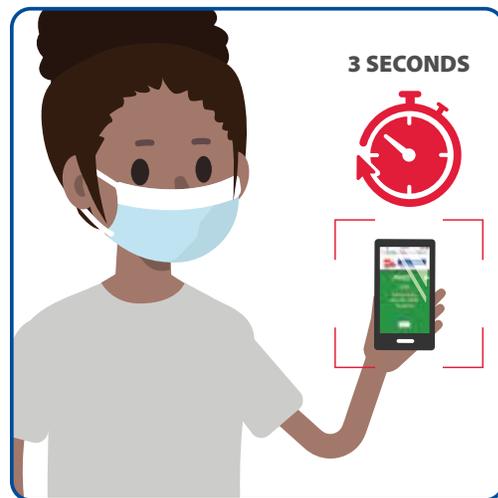

The Main Entrance will remain an option for staff, volunteers and other visitors. However, the opening of the staff entrance is expected to reduce the current traffic volume and associated risks at the Main Entrance.

This change is implemented to support staff through a process that has been repeated hundreds of times for more than seven months, following the government direction for the healthcare sector. This is a shared responsibility to keep our at-risk community safe.

At this time, we thank the team of screeners – Commissionaires, staff and volunteers – who have supported us during this pandemic. Your efforts and diligence have helped to keep our community safe.

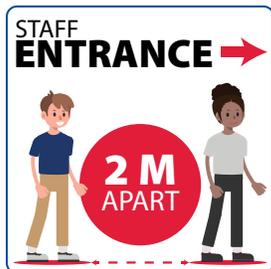

Details

- Since there are no screeners at the staff entrance, staff can only go through the staff entrance if using the screening app, and have successfully passed screening (green screen) on the current date (today).
- Staff are required to show their screening results to a video camera.
- A touchless temperature kiosk will record temperature, and a mask distribution bin will be installed.
- Staff must fob in and out when arriving and leaving.
- Please note that the staff entrance is monitored 24/7 through video surveillance
- Please follow the signage for instruction, throughout the entrance. More information to come about this new experience.
- By exiting through the staff entrance, you are attesting to that you do not have any COVID-19 related symptoms, or you have notified your manager/supervisor regarding your condition.

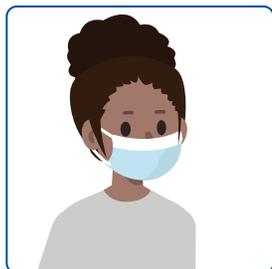

Your access will be revoked if:

- You did not have a successful screening tool result (green screen) of the current date (today).
- You did not follow infection control practices (e.g. wash your hands before taking a mask).
- You let someone follow you in (everyone must swipe to open the door, do not hold the door for others)

Frequently Asked Questions

1. Do I have to use the staff entrance if I use the screening tool?

No, you are not required to use staff entrance if you do not wish to. Main entrance will remain to an option for everyone. We are hoping that this change will reduce the traffic and associated risks at the main entrance.

2. Do I have to follow the same process if I am just taking a break?

Yes, you are still required to follow the same process. You can show the green screen from earlier this shift, but you must practice hand hygiene and take temperatures.

Please note that the smoking area will remain at the front of the facility. No smoking will be allowed near the staff entrance.

3. What if I passed screening, however my temperature screening failed at the kiosk?

Please exit the staff entrance immediately.

If you believe this is for an explainable reason (e.g. exercise), please wait for a period of time and try again. Otherwise please leave the facility, contact your manager/supervisor and Employee Health IPAC Consultant Nadia Butt at ext. 212 . Please follow the signs for instructions throughout the staff entrance.

4. What is the auditing process for the staff entrance compliance?

Video footage is reviewed daily to identify potential risks. Non-compliance will be identified and followed up upon by managers/supervisors.

Thanks,
Jay Innes

Flu Vaccine Clinics at Perley Rideau

Don't forget to get your flu shot in Lupton Hall. The team look forward to seeing you.

In conjunction with National Infection Control Week, October 19-23, we kicked off the annual flu vaccination campaign for residents and staff.

As we near completion of resident vaccinations, staff have stepped up and rolled up their sleeves.

As of December 2, we have reached a staff vaccination rate of 90.04%. Well, done team, for surpassing the 2019 staff immunization rate of 87%.

Thank you for all your work to keep our community safe.

An introduction to a new screening app for caregivers

In order to streamline the main entrance screening process and adapt to frequent changes to screening criteria, an online screening tool (called a web-based app) is available for designated caregivers starting Monday, December 7th.

This app can be accessed at the following locations of the Perley Rideau website:

1. Dedicated webpage: <https://covidscreening.perleyrideau.ca>
2. Resumption of Visits webpage: <http://www.perleyrideau.ca/visiting-during-a-pandemic>

The screening tool can be completed by computer, tablet or cell phone. The link to the app can be saved as a website shortcut on your smartphone by visiting the website and choosing the menu option “Add to Home Screen” from the phone.

Questions on the app consist of the following:

1. Information

- Name, phone number, email, role, resident unit & resident name
- Email would be required for the screening results to be emailed to you. A personal email can be used if that is easier for pulling up screening results on your smartphone at the entrance.

2. Attestations

- Negative COVID test within last 7 days (proof is required upon entry)
- Read and will comply with the Visitor Policy "Policy for Indoor and Outdoor Visits with Residents"
- Not visited resident who is self-isolating/symptomatic &/or another facility on outbreak

3. Symptoms

- Checklist of symptoms potentially related to COVID-19 (e.g., fever, shortness of breath, etc.)

4. Travel

- “Have you travelled outside of Canada or had close contact with anyone that has travelled outside of Canada in the last 14 days?”

5. Contact

- “Have you had close contact with anyone with respiratory illness or a confirmed or suspected case of COVID-19 without wearing the required PPE?”

6. Review of Answers

- Summary of submitted information
- Answers can be changed if needed

7. Declaration

- Declaration that information shared is true to the best of your knowledge

Depending on your answers, a red or green screen will appear. A red screen indicates “Do not enter” and instructions are provided on who to contact about next steps. A green screen indicates “Pass” and you will be able to enter the facility without any issue. Note: proof of negative COVID test within last 7 days also required upon entry.

The screening app can be completed up to 2 hours before you present for screening; and will also replace the previous requirement of pre-booking visits online. The time-stamped green outcome screen can be shown to screeners at the main entrance directly from the web browser or from the emailed results.

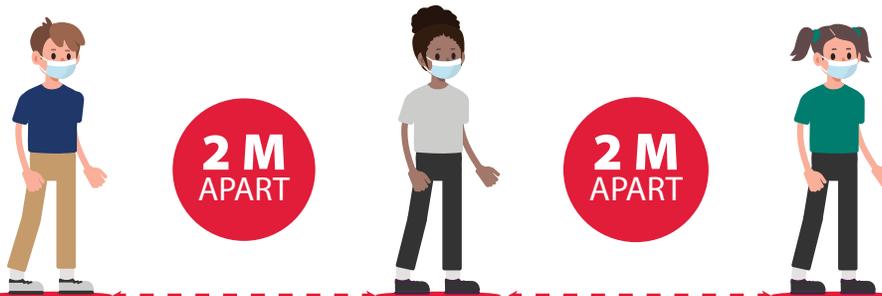

If you do not have a smartphone, screeners will continue to review all the screening questions with you verbally and you will be required to manually sign and complete attestations.

If you have any questions about the app, please contact Katrin Spencer (x2225, kspencer@prvhc.com), or Melissa Norman (x2448, mnorman@prvhc.com).

Congratulations Justine on WeRPN Award

Justine Evraire has 29 years of service and dedication to the Perley and Rideau Veterans' Health Centre. Justine has worked diligently to become a leader in Palliative Care by becoming a trainer through the CLRI Communication at End-of-life train the trainer program and has been trained in the Pallium Canada Learning Essential Approaches to Palliative Care. As a Registered Practical Nurse on one of our advanced dementia care units, Justine works with and leads the team in an inter-professional approach to care. She provides coaching and mentorship by caring for residents who require a palliative approach to care on admission to Long-term care and for those who are at End-of-life. Through her tireless dedication and advocacy for her residents she provides a holistic approach to palliative care and is a tremendous support to families especially during their most difficult times. Justine is a leader in palliative care, supporting and mentoring new RPNs and PSWs at the point of care to ensure quality care and advocacy. Lastly, Justine has influenced palliative and end-of-life care across our facility by taking initiative to improve our related, internal processes and protocols.

Justine Evraire, RPN,
2020 recipient of WeRPN award

Statement

I am overwhelmed with gratitude to have been selected to receive the Michael and Werner Geidlinger Excellence in Palliative Care Award. Thank you all so much for being here to share in this occasion. I am so honoured to have my work recognized in this way by all attending this evening. Palliative care means so much to me and I am grateful that it resonates with others.

This accomplishment is not something that I did alone, and there are many others who deserve to share in this award. I would like to thank all my colleagues and manager who nominated me for this amazing award.

I would like to thank all the wonderful staff members I have and had the pleasure in working with over my career at the Perley and Rideau Veterans' Health Centre. Their guidance and mentorship have allowed me to recognize within myself, a love for palliative care. I would like to thank all the families and resident's over the years to have the privilege and honour of caring for them at end of life. I want to thank my family that have supported me and driven me to be a mindful and caring nurse.

I will continue my efforts to grow and provide end of life care with dignity, compassion and quality.

Thank you,
Justine Evraire

Virtual Visits News

(Phone calls, Skype and FaceTime with families)

As the team from Therapeutic Recreation and Creative Arts helps adapt during these dynamic times, they are developing plans to return to more conventional programming in small groups and in-person with residents.

This Summer, musicians introduced plexiglass barriers and physical distancing to re-introduce courtyard performances and artists introduced paint-filled water guns for safe artistic expression.

It is through innovation and a commitment to resident care that the team is working to provide these valuable services and supports for residents to combat isolation during this pandemic.

As the team returns to programming and at a time when essential caregivers are welcome on site to support residents, the number of virtual visits offered will decline from the peak of 50 visits per day.

In no way does this mean that virtual visits are stopping, it is just a matter of resources available to ensure equal and equitable access for residents. And virtual visits will still be accommodated for special events like birthdays and anniversaries.

If you would like to speak to Therapeutic Recreation and Creative Arts staff about the virtual visits, please refer to the contact list below and connect with the individual responsible for the unit where your loved one resides.

- Dave Harris (Gatineau building): dharris@prvhc.com, ext. 7735
- Robyn Oraziatti (Rideau building/Ottawa building): roraziatti@prvhc.com, ext. 2125

Lunch for Visiting Caregivers on Christmas Day

The Perley Rideau will offer for sale a lunch meal for essential caregivers visiting on December 25th.

The holiday menu will include cream of butternut squash soup, roast turkey, cranberry chutney, sage and onion dressing, gravy, whipped potatoes, sautéed garlic brussel sprouts, sugar pie, and a choice of canned beverage, small bottled juice or water.

The cost for the meal is $20.95 plus HST.

In the coming days, the meals will be available for purchase on the Perley Rideau Store website (<https://perleyrideaustore.ca>). Registration will be required when purchasing a meal to ensure our community is following all safety protocols.

Meals will be delivered on Christmas Day to the unit and provided in take-out containers and disposables for the safety of our community.

Please note that there is a limit of one essential caregiver in a resident's room at this time.

Tickets will be on sale until December 18th, 2020.

For all questions, please contact Katherine Malek, Cafeteria and Catering Supervisor at 613-526-7170 ext. 2606 or kmalek@prvhc.com.

Crafting Support for Residents

Pat Griffith volunteers in the woodworking studio and to support resident visits. Retired from Global Affairs Canada, Pat continues to craft news ways to contribute from home during the pandemic.

In his home workshop, Pat transforms shipping pallets donated by Global Affairs Canada into kits for resident art projects.

During Waste Reduction Week 2020, Global Affairs Canada (GAC) highlighted on its social media channels the innovation of recycling shipping crates in partnership with the Perley and Rideau team from Therapeutic Recreation and Creative Arts programming.

During this pandemic, Pat has also constructed wooden stands for phones and tablets. He is selling the items to raise funds to support the Foundation. To date more than $500 has been raised to help maximize the quality of life for residents at the Perley Rideau.

The items can be viewed and purchased online at: <https://www.giveshop.ca/market/?charity=5efde0bc4896a64c0b725d7e>

Pat has also adapted his resident visits to provide virtual Skype visits.

Thank you for your valuable contributions, Pat.

PERLEY RIDEAU

PHYSIO & MASSAGE THERAPY CLINIC

An Update from the Interprofessional Clinic

The Interprofessional Clinic continues to provide audiology, occupational therapy, physiotherapy and speech and language therapy services to the Perley Rideau residents and tenants as well as the community at large. Our services to the pediatric and adult population are offered virtually or in person depending on the needs of the clients. COVID-19 procedures are in place to ensure safe services to clients and staff. More information is available on the clinic's website.

Infant Hearing Program

In October, the clinic entered a partnership with the Infant Hearing Program of Eastern Ontario, led by the Pinecrest Queensway Community Health Centre. In Ontario, it is standard of care for infants to be seen for a hearing screening in the first few weeks of life. 4 in 1000 babies in Ontario will have hearing loss at birth or before the age of five. A permanent hearing loss can cause delays in a child's development but when found early, children can get the support they need to learn to communicate.

Unfortunately, these important tests were temporarily put on hold at the beginning of March, due to COVID-19 restrictions. As a result, many infants did not receive a hearing screening as a newborn. With the help of extra funding through the Ontario Government and the Ministry of Children, Community and Social Services, a plan was put in place to ensure that those babies who were missed could be seen for a Modified Hearing Screen. The Interprofessional Clinic has committed to seeing over 600 babies for this Modified Screening before the end of March 2021.

Stuttering Clinic

Did you know that October 22nd marked the 2020 International Stuttering Awareness Day?

What is happening during that day? Virtual activities around the world. The idea of the day is to provide a platform for people who stutter and their allies to foster dialogue, promote understanding, acceptance and support. In Canada, there were municipal proclamations in several cities; some monuments were illuminated in sea-green. Here in Ottawa, the Shaw Centre downtown was illuminated in sea-green to commemorate the day. In the United States, two documentaries were shown virtually, followed by Q&A sessions. Additionally, there was the virtual conference of the International Stuttering Association, ISAD, which takes place every year in October. The theme this year was "Journey of Words, Resiliency and Bouncing Back".

Why is it important to mark this day? Being a person who stutters can be very isolating. It's hard to approach people and to make connections when we have a communication disorder. So, one of the goals of this day is to help create links between people who stutter so that they don't feel alone. In general society, stuttering is not well understood. There are misunderstandings and stigma that can have negative social, educational, and vocational consequences for people who stutter. A recently published book, Stammering Pride & Prejudice: Difference not Defect (Campbell, Constantino & Simpson, 2019) looks at stuttering from the perspective of the social model of disability. This model suggests that rather than "fixing" the person who stutters, we should look at how our society is set up for people who can reply quickly and talk fast. Think of navigating an automated phone directory when you have difficulty saying your name or account number. This year, with all the news on systematic discrimination, it is important to highlight any way in which those who are different are ignored or rejected.

Is it difficult to find help (therapy) for stuttering? It's not difficult to find treatment for stuttering, but it can be financially challenging. Stuttering treatment is not covered by health insurance and supplementary health insurance doesn't cover much. Also, not all treatment is equal. It is important to find a program or therapist that treats not just the visible aspects (e.g., repetitions, blocks, facial grimaces) but also the less visible impact that struggling to speak can have on communication and confidence. Participation in groups should be part of management. As people who stutter, it is important to realize that we are not limited by our difficulty with speech; that we should not be ashamed; that stuttering does not define us. Instead of avoiding or hiding it, stuttering can be shared, even celebrated. A communication disorder should never be treated solely in an office, sitting at a table. We need to go out into the community, challenge ourselves, and get out of our comfort zone, with the support of people who understand.

To mark International Stuttering Awareness day, Caroline Bredeson who is the Speech and Language Pathologist running the Interprofessional Clinic's Stuttering Clinic completed an interview with Radio Canada.

At the Interprofessional Clinic at Perley Rideau, we provide stuttering treatment for pre-school-aged children through adults, and offer group programs several times a year, including our "Have Your Say" teen day-camp. We help train graduate students in speech-language pathology to become effective and compassionate therapists.

Financial support for those who do not have the funds for required treatment is available through the Marie Poulos fund, established by former clients. More information is available on the clinic's website.

Bouche à oreille: French Communication Group Therapy for Children

Coming in November, the clinic will be hosting a French communication group for children 7-12 years of age. The group, "Bouche à oreille: mise sur la communication", led by audiologists will be held over 7 weeks on Thursday evenings, starting November 5th. An English group will be held in the new year. Parents interested in having their children participate in the group can contact the clinic to reserve their spot.

Free Hearing Tests

From November 16th to December 18th, the clinic will be offering comprehensive FREE HEARING TESTS to Perley Rideau residents, tenants, and their family members as well as Perley Rideau staff and family members. This exclusive event is made possible with the help of University of Ottawa audiology students under the supervision of the clinic's audiologists. Space is limited so please contact the clinic to reserve your spot now.

Committed to Excellence, the Perley Rideau partners with Nipissing University

Five years in the making, the Perley Rideau has finally become an affiliated partner with Nipissing University for their blended-learning bridging program, from Registered Practical Nurse (RPN) to Registered Nurses (RN). This is wonderful, and much anticipated, news for our nursing community because it opens the doors for our talented RPN team to advance their training and become RNs, not only from the comfort of their own home, but also right here, on campus, with us.

Nipissing University is the only school in Ontario that offers a part-time RN training program and from anywhere in the province. This program stands out for its flexibility, allowing nurses to continue practicing as an RPN while studying part-time online, with clinical experiences within the individual's current workplace and other settings close to home.

Since acceptance into this lucrative program requires RPNs to be current employees of a partnering organization with Nipissing University, our new affiliation means that our RPN team now have access to reap the benefits of this opportunity, when before they could not. Though being an employee of the Perley Rideau does not fund the program, nor guarantee acceptance into it, the leadership team does need to provide written support and recommendation for the applicant.

Of course, standing behind our nursing team is something the Perley Rideau takes great pride in, and we were more than happy to offer this support to our applicant nurses. This year the Perley Rideau supported five outstanding RPNs in their applications, which were due this month. These individuals have demonstrated, in so many ways, their ongoing commitment to resident-centered care. We have seen them live our values every day, including going above-and-beyond in their practice to foster respect, integrity, compassion and excellence within our community.

On behalf of the entire Perley Rideau team, we wish each of these individuals success and all the best in their application with Nipissing University, as well as in their future endeavours.

Welcome Back, Volunteers!

We wish a warm welcome back to a small group of volunteers, who graciously accepted new or modified roles supporting our staff team and residents during the pandemic. Volunteers assisted with outdoor visits through the summer and fall and continue to help with meal support, one-to-one visits, COVID test clinics, Roman Catholic mass, tenant activities and escorting clients visiting the Interprofessional Clinic. In September, Deborah's Gift Boutique reopened to staff, volunteers and residents, with reduced hours and enhanced infection control measures. And, since October, our pub bartenders have offered one "happy hour" per week, for residents of each of the three long-term care buildings.

This intrepid group follows all the same safety measures as employees, including weekly COVID testing, daily screening and Personal Protective Equipment.

Thank you to everyone involved in these efforts and to all the volunteers who have supported us from home, since April, with sewing, virtual visits, resident tax returns and other administrative projects. #ItWillTakeAVillage #PerleyUnited

2020 Volunteer Service Awards

Volunteer Services hit the road in August and September, delivering service anniversary pins. While we were saddened to miss the usual National Volunteer Week gathering and the opportunity it brings to publicly recognize these long-standing members of our team, these individual reunions were a real treat. Thanks to each and every one of you for your ongoing commitment to improving quality of life for those who call Perley Rideau home. We look forward to a time when we can all be together, under one roof, again!

Kudos to the Outdoor Visit Support Team

Andrea Liu and Rachel Stoparczyk

The outdoor visit season has officially ended, spanning from July 4th- October 12th, 2020. During this time period, there were 1,040 outdoor visits from families and friends with residents in the outdoor visit station set-up in the Lupton Hall Courtyard. Thanks to all the staff and volunteers who worked together to make the outdoor visits possible! It was so rewarding to see how happy the residents and families/visitors were to see each other.

We wanted to give a big thank you to:

- Volunteers and staff who were stationed at Lupton Hall to screen visitors, supervise visits, and porter residents from the units
- Nursing, Therapeutic Recreation and Creative Arts, Allied Health, and Meal Helper staff who helped porter and support residents during outdoor visits
- Volunteers and staff that answered questions about outdoor visits and helped families book visits online
- The Clinical Administrative Assistant team who coordinated the outdoor visit schedules
- Support Services who helped provide an optimal setup for the outdoor visit station
- The Visit Planning team who spent many hours organizing and coordinating the visits
- And, especially, all the residents and families for their patience and cooperation during this unique experience

Without you, these outdoor visits wouldn't have been such a great success! Thanks for your contribution to a memorable outdoor visit season!

Thank you for being brave and spreading love through a year of uncertainty!

As Executive Director at the Perley and Rideau Veterans' Health Centre Foundation, let me tell you: Your support makes a world of difference as we persevere through one of the most difficult times we've ever faced.

Honestly, I struggle to find the words that express how grateful I am for your kindness and generosity. The love and bravery you've shown this year is truly indescribable. Your support helps provide the best care possible while we fight the greatest health crisis of our time!

The outcry of support fills my fellow staff members and I with so much appreciation and hope – especially with the countless words of encouragement we received. We've hung your words messages of hope up in our hallway, so we see it everyday!

COVID-19 has created a huge financial challenge for Perley Rideau. I doubt we could have made it this far without amazing people like you, but we continue to face many new expenses. From increased staffing with meal helpers and cleaners, to more personal protective equipment (PPE), to literally gallons of hand sanitizer.

We know these expenses are here to stay for the foreseeable future and we will continue to need you by our side as we persevere through the second wave of this pandemic.

My office is right by the entrance of Perley Rideau. Now that we are once again welcoming visitors, even in a limited capacity, I do my best to come out and say hi and I'm always greeted by happy faces – or in this case, happy eyes as we're all masked up.

We're often told how brave we are for seeing their loved ones through this tough time, but to be honest, it's family members and supporters like you that are the brave ones. Because to me, bravery means trusting another through difficult circumstances – and the trust my fellow staff members and I feel from you is nothing short of courageous!

Caring for residents, no matter the circumstances, is simply what we do. I'm not exaggerating when I say we see everyone, residents and staff alike, like family. That's what's so extraordinary about this place! We're a family. And that's why your support is so important and meaningful to us this year. Thank you so much for your kindness!

Caring for seniors living with dementia takes patience, dedication and creativity

Alyssa and Danielle Charbonneau are sisters and nurses at Perley Rideau who work in the Gatineau Residence. This fall they joined forces with the Foundation to share their story and experiences working in long-term care during COVID-19 with donors.

In a letter and “Day in the life” snapshot, Alyssa and Danielle outlined their typical workday and why they chose to care for seniors and Veterans at Perley Rideau after becoming Registered Practical Nurses. Read their full story here.

“It can be heartbreaking to see a grandparent, parent or spouse cope with the hardships of dementia. But when you find a small way to help them, when you find a solution to a problem that for a moment brings them a smile, it reminds us why we chose this career – and why we chose to work at Perley Rideau.”

Alyssa and Danielle know everyday has its ups and downs – especially during a global pandemic. They’re constantly finding new and creative ways to help residents and their loved one’s cope with such a difficult disease. As staff they know each resident on their units on a personal level, develop individualized strategies to bring them comfort and joy, and use tools – like iPads – to keep residents connected with family during COVID-19 and limited in-person visits.

It’s because of people like Alyssa and Danielle who share their stories that our community grows and we can continue to improve every facet of long-term care. Every single one of us has a unique experience and perspective that can inspire others.

If you would like to share your Perley Rideau story – whether you’re a staff member, resident, family member or donor – please contact Courtney Rock, Development Manager at the Foundation at 613-526-7180x7177 or crock@prvhc.com.

Are You Getting Enough WATER?

What water does for your body...

- Water is the major component of most body parts.
- Forms saliva (digestion).
- Converts food to components needed for survival - digestion.
- Keeps mucosal membranes moist.
- Allows body's cells to grow, reproduce and survive.
- Flushes body waste, mainly in urine.
- Lubricates joints.

- Makes up 83% of blood.
- Composes 75% of the brain.
- Needed by the brain to manufacture hormones and neurotransmitters.
- Regulates body temperature (sweating and respiration).
- Acts as a shock absorber for the brain and spinal cord.
- Helps deliver oxygen all over the body.
- Accounts for 22% of Bones.
- Makes up 75% muscles.

How Much Water Do I Need?

- Between half an ounce to an ounce of water for each pound you weigh, every day
 - For example, if you weigh 150 pounds, that would be 75 to 150 ounces of water a day
(the higher end if active, warm climate)

The Future of Caring

2020 Q3 Update

The COVID-19 pandemic continues to threaten the health and safety of residents, staff and their families. Minimizing this threat while maximizing resident quality of life remains our top priority. Our success to date results directly from the professionalism, hard work and dedication of our staff. Check our website for the latest information.

The pandemic has affected everyone in different ways. Some have lost loved ones, for instance, while others have been forced into bankruptcy. Hard times such as these are new to many of us. Most of our residents, however, persevered through years of war and hardship. When times were tough, they supported one another. We must follow their example.

Return of (some) Volunteers

Perley Rideau's dedicated volunteers provide perhaps the best example of supporting one another during hard times. In recent months, we have begun to welcome back a few volunteers who have graciously accepted new or modified roles. These volunteers supported outdoor visits during the summer and early fall, and continue to help with meals, mask distribution, COVID testing, Roman Catholic mass, tenant activities and screening Interprofessional Clinic clients. They also reopened Deborah's Gift Boutique with reduced hours and enhanced infection-control measures. We extend our heartfelt thanks to them and to the volunteers who have supported us from home in a variety of ways, such as with virtual visits and resident tax returns. You are key members of our village!

Therapeutic Recreation and Creative Arts

Therapeutic Recreation and Creative Arts staff continue to find ways to deliver programming both indoors and outside. Staff artists have recently helped residents sculpt and paint clay flowers, for example, and create canvases using paint-filled water guns. To mark the 75th anniversary of Victory over Japan (VJ Day) musician Trudy Letourneau entertained residents with a performance of period songs. Staff have also taken residents on Trishaw rides around our campus.

Perley Staff Deployed to other Long-Term Care Homes

In late September, public-health authorities ordered The Ottawa Hospital to take over management of two Ottawa long-term care homes due to large outbreaks of COVID-19. Members of the Perley Rideau team put up their hands to support this effort by sharing leading infection prevention and control practices from the long-term care sector. We thank these staff members for helping to realize our goal of supporting our partners to benefit of the health care system.

Also noteworthy are two other examples of Perley Rideau staff sharing their skills and knowledge to improve long-term care. On September 30, Dr. Robert presented to Ontario's Long Term Care COVID-19 Commission, calling for improvements in long-term care in Ontario, particularly an increased emphasis on frailty and quality of life.

Jen Plant, Perley Rideau's Director of Clinical Practice, contributed to Clinical Nursing Leadership eLearning, a series of online modules delivered in partnership with Algonquin College, Bruyère and Ontario CLRI - Centres for Learning, Research & Innovation in Long-Term Care. CLRI develops, delivers and evaluates educational resources and programs to train the current and future long-term care workforce.

SeeMe™: Understanding frailty together

The SeeMe™: Understanding frailty together program, developed by Perley Rideau staff, continues to grow more successful.

SeeMe™ assesses frailty as part of a person's overall health, and helps residents and their families to make informed decisions about treatment. In the first year of SeeMe, a recent evaluation found that the number of Perley Rideau residents transferred to hospital decreased by 20%. In August, Andre Liu, Program Lead for Perley Rideau Interprofessional Care, delivered a webinar about SeeMe as part of AdvantAge Ontario's summer school series. The webinar was both well attended and well received.

SeeMe™
Understanding frailty together.

Centre of Excellence in Frailty-Informed Care™

The Centre of Excellence in Frailty-Informed Care is increasingly busy and successful. In September, the Centre announced that the Journal of the American Medical Directors Association (JAMDA) would publish its evaluative study of the performance of Perley Rideau's SAFE unit. The study compared the outcomes of two groups of patients: those who transfer to the SAFE unit and those who remain in hospital. The study found that SAFE patients had shorter stays in hospital, were more likely to be discharged to home, required less follow-up care, and were no more likely to visit a hospital emergency room or require hospital readmission in the following months.

IN FRAILTY-INFORMED CARE™

The Centre of Excellence has several other research projects underway, including a few related to COVID-19. One study, for example, examines how the social isolation resulting from visitation and program restrictions impacts the psychosocial health of residents, caregivers and family members. A second project, a partnership with the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario, evaluates the technology that sanitizes used N95 masks. The Centre of Excellence has also enrolled in a new program initiated by the Canadian Foundation for Healthcare Improvement. The LTC+: Acting on Pandemic Learning Together program offers everything from webinars and coaching, to seed funding and research partnerships. Jen Plant, Perley Rideau's Director of Clinical Practice, is one of the program's coaches.

New Director of Nursing

Perley Rideau is pleased to welcome Rachel de Kemp as Director of Nursing. Rachel has a wealth of experience in nursing leadership and most recently served as the Integrated Vice President of Patient and Resident Services and Chief Nursing Executive at Almonte General Hospital and Carleton Place & District Memorial Hospital. Rachel replaces Doris Jenkins, who recently retired.

Justine Evraire Earns WePRN Award

The Registered Practical Nurses Association of Ontario has named Perley Rideau's Justine Evraire as the 2020 recipient of the Michael & Werner Geidlinger Excellence in Palliative Care Award. Presented annually, the award recognizes the unique character and tremendous care delivered to patients at the end of life by an RPN, whose efforts demonstrate exemplary palliative care competencies that optimize quality of life and help families cope during illness and bereavement.

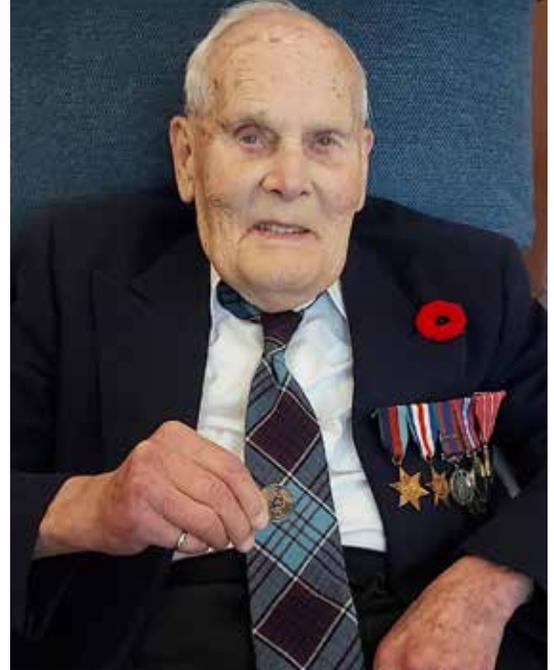

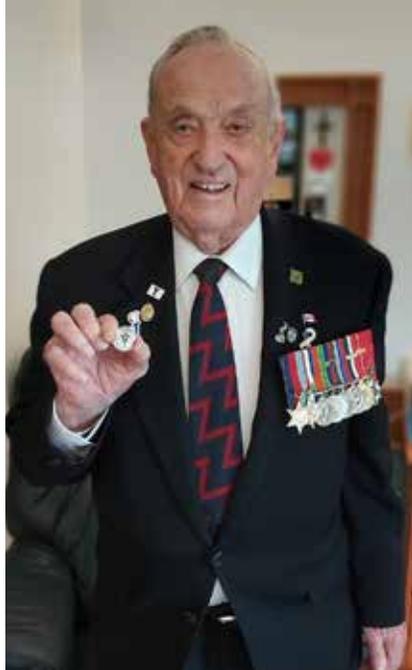

New Partnership with Nipissing University

Perley Rideau forged a new partnership with Nipissing University. Under the partnership, current Registered Practical Nurses study part-time to complete a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree and qualify as Registered Nurses. Students complete theory-based courses online and some practical courses here at Perley Rideau.

New Coin Commemorates 75th Anniversary

Three Veteran residents participated in the launch of the Royal Canadian Mint's new coin commemorating the 75th anniversary of the end of the Second World War. The Mint presented a coin to each of the three Veterans: Betty Bell served in the Women's Division of the RCAF; John Commerford served as an artillery gunner; and Carl Reiser was a flying officer in the RCAF. The $2 coin is now in circulation.

Expansion Plans Delayed

Efforts to expand the Seniors' Village are on hold due to COVID-19. We continue to explore the possibility of partnering with Algonquin College and Ottawa Community Housing to create a centre that provides long-term care and affordable accommodation for frail seniors while offering training opportunities to students and care professionals.

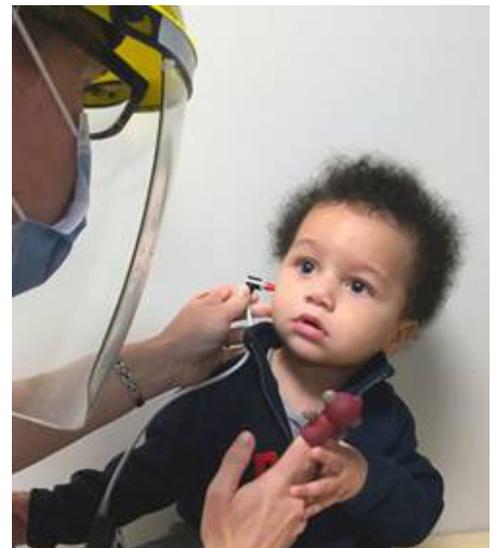

Interprofessional Clinic Welcomes Newborns

The Interprofessional Clinic at Perley Rideau now supports the Infant Hearing Program of Eastern Ontario. Under the program, Clinic audiologists will screen the hearing of more than 600 newborns by the end of March.

A reminder that during the pandemic, the Clinic is open only to those with appointments. Clinic staff or volunteers screen patients for COVID-19 symptoms before escorting them inside.

Perley Rideau Foundation

To mark the 75th anniversary of the end of the Second World War, a mass planting of miniature Canadian flags took place on the lawns surrounding the Perley Rideau. Supporters from across the country sponsored a flag to pay tribute and honour to those who have served. The sea of flags greeted Veterans on the morning of November 11th.

Family and Friends Council

The last Family and Friends Council meeting was held on Thursday, November 19th at 7pm using Zoom. At our previous meeting we discussed a range of topics and questions with Mary Boutette, Perley and Rideau COO. The topics included: staffing levels, changes to the processes for visits, changes for the front door screening process along with other topics raised by the families present on the call.

The Mission of the Family and Friends Council:

The mission of the Family and Friends Council [FFC] is to improve the quality of life for all residents by promoting an atmosphere of compassionate care and support amongst family members, friends, volunteers and staff. Participation is open to family of residents, former residents of The Perley and Rideau Veterans' Health Centre, and persons of importance to residents who are committed to acting as advocates. There is no membership fee. We hope this experience and broad range of perspectives may serve as sources of information, assistance and support to all members of our long-term care home community. Council traditionally meets monthly except in July, August and December. Our meetings include updates by Senior Management, presentations on topics of relevance to residents and family members, budget reports, and opportunities to learn more about life at the Perley Rideau. We look forward to welcoming family and friends of our residents and to their participation in the activities of the Council. For questions about the Council please contact Heather Moxley by e-mail at: familycouncil.prvhc@gmail.com

Thanks to The Perley Rideau staff association for the generous donation of treats in the last few months including candy apples, cotton candy, popcorn and ice cream.

Leading a Meeting with Impact

Lead a meeting with these proven but unfortunately forgotten tips so you get more done, stay on topic, wander less, get more participation, reduce confusion, end on time, and have participants walking away with a “thumbs up.” Before any meeting, mentally rehearse what the meeting is about, why it’s needed, what should be accomplished, and who the vital attendees are. Double the impact by telling/reminding everyone the purpose of the meeting, what the results should be, and what time you are ending. Many meetings grow sluggish with discussions between two or three members not relevant to other participants. Intervene by maintaining awareness so your meeting marches forward, while directing these smaller discussions to outside the group. Don’t end a meeting without a plan of action for any unfinished business. These tips will make you a leader who raises productivity.

Should You Lend Money to a Coworker?

Should you lend money to a coworker? The question has many considerations, but the most cited axiom is, “Don’t lend money to a friend unless you expect it not to be repaid.” A request may indicate a more serious personal problem. If so, loaning money then equates to enabling. Does your friend need other help? Consider these steps: 1) Show empathy. 2) Don’t be judgmental. Eliciting defensiveness will shut down willingness to accept help. 3) Discuss concern for your friend. Use “I” statements: “I’d like to help, but I’m just not in a position to lend. Can we talk about the situation?” 4) Have a source of help/number available, and offer it. 5) Offer to accompany your friend to the source of help. (Note: If your friend does not accept help, you will increase the likelihood of doing so in the future with this supportive strategy.)

Hidden Stress Hazards of Remote Workers

If you work remotely, reach out for help before you begin “adapting” to potential stressors of your position in unhealthy ways. Don’t let frustrations drag on. Research shows remote workers can face many unique challenges, including loneliness, inability to process stress with peers, irritability from interruptions at home, go-it-alone technology issues, worrying about completing tasks correctly, resentment from being unable to “switch off” from work to non-work, feeling frustrated at being unable to relax because of unfinished work only steps away, and parenting conflicts with guilt at being unable to attend to child needs.

Boredom and the Pandemic

Boredom may be the least discussed experience of the COVID-19 pandemic. The international response has affected where we go and what we can do, who we can be with or even hug. Restaurants are closed or stark and bare, and more movie theaters shutter every day. Boredom is normal, but pandemic-related boredom is a bit different. Research shows it can have health effects, as it did during the 1918 Spanish flu. These can include behavioral issues, relapse of health conditions, worsening of compulsive-behavior disorders, negative thinking, depression, and even suicide. (Suicide rates increased during the 1918 Spanish flu.)

National Caregivers Month

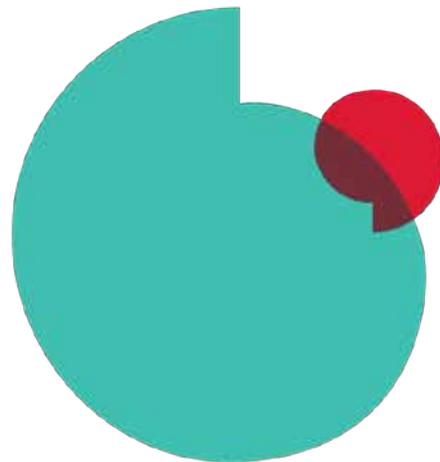

November is National Caregivers Month. It's a time to recognize, support, and empower family caregivers. One of the most comprehensive sources of help is www.caregiver.org, the website of the Family Caregiver Alliance. It is an online service that provides quality information, support, and resources for family caregivers of adults with chronic physical or cognitive conditions such as Alzheimer's, stroke, Parkinson's, and other illnesses. Sixty-eight percent of caregivers are women (aarp.org) who spend an average of 20 hours per week caring for a loved one. Whether you are a caregiver or in a relationship with a caregiver, do you know the signs and symptoms of caregiver distress? These symptoms may include feeling overwhelmed or constantly worried, feeling tired often, getting too much sleep or not enough sleep, gaining or losing weight, becoming easily irritated or angry, losing interest in activities you used to enjoy, feeling sad, having frequent headaches, bodily pain, or other physical problems. These symptoms can also give way to burnout. Caregivers need physical help with tasks, decisions, meal prep, errands, and chores. They especially need emotional support to help them deal with the stress of caring for an elderly person or other loved one with special needs. Most people do not know that caregiving is one of the toughest and most stressful jobs. This is because it is characterized by high levels of “job strain.” Job strain includes having high levels of stress with low levels of control over how much, how often, and when caregiving will next be required.

Alcohol and Prescription Drugs Don't Mix

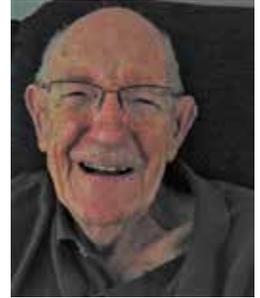

Do you take medication for a medical condition like high blood pressure, high cholesterol, diabetes, migraines, anxiety, arthritis, sleep problems, or a heart condition? The Centers for Disease Control is growing more concerned about the risk associated with drinking alcohol while taking prescription medications. More people are aging, many are taking more medications, and thousands of the new drugs have adverse effects if you use them in combination with alcohol, even a little bit. Pay attention to warning labels about alcohol. Hundreds of medications do not mix with alcohol. Over 22 medications for high cholesterol may cause liver damage if combined with alcohol. Discover whether the medication you are taking has a side effect with alcohol at www.niaaa.nih.gov. [Search “harmful interactions pdf”]

HMCS CORNWALLIS IN THE BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC

BY Gerry Cann, friend and Perley Rideau tenant

Gerry Cann

"The Battle of the Atlantic was the only battle that really frightened me."
Winston Churchill

Located on Nova Scotia's Annapolis Basin, sandwiched between the villages of Deep Brook and Clementsport, lies what is still recognizable as a military station. People on their way to either the old Loyalist town of Digby with its ferry to St. John NB, or to historic Annapolis Royal, are apt to simply glance and look away, but they have just driven through what used to be HMCS Cornwallis, a most significant base during WWII, for it was there that young men and women came in their tens of thousands to learn the ways of the sea. When war with Nazi Germany began in early September, 1939, there was too little of everything. The strength of the Royal Canadian Navy (RCN) was six destroyers and five minesweepers, manned and supported by a complement of about 1800 men. With few ships and hardly any anti-submarine skills, the RCN was, to put it bluntly, hardly a navy at all. The United States assumed neutrality then, and Great Britain stood alone against German military might. Her great problem was logistics, everything necessary to support her population and prosecute the war had to be imported. Requirements to prosecute a war added dramatically to her requirements.

These necessities could only come through or from Canada, with the 3000-mile width of the Atlantic Ocean between.

World War One (WWI) had proven the capability of German submarines, the U-Boats, to sink ships on a wholesale basis, and it was obvious that this would again be the case. Merchant ships of any nation would have little chance of getting through against that menace without warships to defend them. The convoy system (many ships sailing together protected by a screen of warships), had proven effective in WW1, and that concept was adopted anew. Halifax, with its world-class harbour would again be the assembly points for convoys.

On September 16 the first convoy sailed from Halifax, escorted for the first 350 miles by two RCN destroyers; two Royal Navy (RN) cruisers took over for the remaining distance. Soon two convoys a week were sailing from Halifax, and by the end of 1939 fourteen convoys totalling four hundred and ten ships had sailed from that port. Considering that Canada had declared war on September 10 this was a major undertaking. But the RCN had neither the ships or sailors to adequately escort them.

Ashore, everything went into high gear. Small ships with the manoeuvrability necessary to track and destroy submarines were required in quantity for convoy escort, as were vessels of every other type up to the class of destroyer.

Deep Brook, Nova Scotia

The corvette, a small ship modified to naval standards from the whale fishery had the speed and agility to be effective against U-Boats, and was selected by the Royal Navy (RN) to be the backbone of the escort force. Sixty-four of these were to be built in Canada. With its population then of just over thirteen million and a coastline bordering three oceans, the country incredibly had just a tiny ship-building capacity, which had to be greatly enlarged before construction could even begin. From a standing start, fourteen corvettes were ready by the end of 1940, and the remaining fifty were at sea in late 1941. Early in the war the United States traded 50 obsolete destroyers to Great Britain for bases in Bermuda and Newfoundland. The RCN was allotted six of these old ships, but that allotment didn't do much to add to the shortage of Canadian escort ships; four RCN destroyers, together with ten of the new corvettes were operating in British waters. New Canadian shipyards were building ships more rapidly than the RCN could train crews to man them. The old hands in the RCN, the only instructors really capable of training them, were at sea serving in the anti-invasion fleet in the English Channel, while Canadian training facilities were scarce and scattered. The result was great success for the U-Boats. Inadequately escorted, some one thousand merchant ships were sunk by U-boats during 1939 - 1942.

The RCN had been given total responsibility for the escort of slow convoys sailing from Sydney NS. This became known as the mid-ocean convoy run; the few Canadian ships would escort their ships to a given point in the North Atlantic where they would be met by an RN force which would escort them the rest of the way. These slow convoys were composed of ships with speeds of up to eight knots. Being slow, they were most susceptible to U-Boat attack, and losses were heavy.

The fast convoys sailed from Halifax, escorted by RN and RCN ships together with several United States Navy (USN) warships. The USN presence was ostensibly to protect American ships sailing in the Atlantic convoys, but they assumed a shooting, supporting, defensive role whenever needed. However, when war broke out with Japan in December 1941, all USN ships were transferred to the Pacific and the escort force was seriously diluted. To make things even more serious, the spring of 1942 found RCN corvettes transferred from North Atlantic escort duties to protect tankers bringing vital Caribbean oil to both Canadian and U.S. east coast war industries. The result was that only half the naval ships necessary for convoy escort were available. Merchant ship losses became unsustainable, some 1000 ships having been sunk up to 1942.

The influx of navy recruits necessary for an expanding RCN created an urgent requirement for a large central training base, and in May of 1942 HMCS Cornwallis was commissioned in Halifax for that purpose. It was clear that a larger training facility was necessary. The new RCN ships coming off the ways dictated a larger fitting out and repair facility, and the space occupied by HMCS Cornwallis was urgently required by HMCS Dockyard. The Department of National Defence accordingly, recommended the establishment of a new naval training station capable of accommodating 10,000 personnel in training at any one time, and Deep Brook, an area in the Annapolis Valley between Annapolis Royal and Digby, was selected as suitable, and construction of a base began immediately. HMCS Cornwallis was officially transferred there from Halifax in the early spring of 1943. Beginning with a complement of 2,539 men, this new base expanded rapidly. Until the end of the war there were seldom less than 11,000 trainees and instructors in Cornwallis. It became the largest naval training establishment in the British Commonwealth.

All specialties with the exception of Signals (communications) were taught in HMCS Cornwallis: gunnery, engines, torpedoes, anti-submarine detection (ASDIC), accountancy, cookery, physical and recreational - the list goes on and on, to include every skill required by every branch of the navy were taught there. As new and better equipment became available as the war progressed, new training requirements were met and integrated into the system. The flow of recruits and graduates was so highly organized that, as classes of trained men were scheduled to leave and man new ships, drafts of new recruits would arrive on the same train. Most went to serve in Corvettes.

There was little rest for the instructors. Length of training varied from six to eight weeks with added time for some specialities, and then it was off to sea, the need for men was so urgent. New ships were being launched at such a rate that few fully trained men were available to man them, and a just-commissioned RCN corvette might put to sea with just a few experienced sailors in the crew. Most of these new sailors were Prairie boys who had never seen salt water before, and that was the Annapolis Basin and the Bay of Fundy. The North Atlantic was quite something else where 60-foot waves were common in a gale.

With green crews, a shortage of ships, maintenance problems and deficient equipment, the strain became too great, and, in January 1943 the RCN escorts were removed from their duties. Both ships and their crews were transferred to the RN in the UK for rest, retraining, repair and modernization. The mix of experienced RCN men and the brand-new sailors were able to benefit from both individual and group training in anti-submarine warfare by expert and experienced RN instructors. Some were trained to instructional standards to the benefit of HMCS Cornwallis. In April, 1943, the RCN escort groups emerged from their training period, and from then until the war's end, the RCN assumed total responsibility for every North Atlantic convoy. RCN sailors were now being turned out from HMCS Cornwallis in sufficient numbers to man ships with modern equipment and a base of seasoned crewmen to do the job. In terms of convoy escort, the North Atlantic became a Canadian pond. The turning point in the Battle of the Atlantic was reached in 1943, and the U-Boats lost the upper hand. While both RCN escorts and the escorted merchant ships continued to be lost in large numbers, the ratio of merchant ships lost to U-Boats sunk turned in favour of the RCN.

In 1994 CFB Cornwallis closed, it has not received a heritage designation.

When the war ended the RCN ranked as the third-largest navy in the world. Far Distant Ships (an RCN naval history) reports that the Royal Canadian Navy grew to four hundred and twenty-seven principal ships with a complement of ninety-six thousand men and women, the majority of whom were trained in HMCS Cornwallis.

A further interesting statistic helps us to better understand the enormous contribution of the Cornwallis-trained RCN "During the Second world war, the Royal Canadian Navy convoyed 25,345 ships to Great Britain at the expense of 28 RCN escorts lost, many with their entire crews. The ships that got through contained 181,000,000 tons of cargo. Statistically, during every day of the war there was an average of 125 merchant ships on the Atlantic bound for Britain under largely Canadian escort. The delivery of that tonnage is the equivalent of 40,000 miles of freight cars, a solid band, eleven abreast stretching from the piers of Halifax right across the country to Vancouver." [1]

HMCS Cornwallis shines brightly through her contribution, both during WWII and thereafter. Normally the base would have been destroyed, but the emerging problem with Russia and the Korean war created a need for a strong RCN, and the base survived. The married quarters, a village of houses across from the base were put up for sale, creating a village called 'Cornwallis.' Following unification of the Canadian Armed Forces in 1968 all branches of the Canadian Forces trained there. In 1994 Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Cornwallis closed forever. The sum total of the men and women trained there approaches three quarters of a million men and women.

Cornwallis has never received the official heritage designation she so richly deserves. That once-proud base lies largely forgotten by officialdom, government and military alike. Today it's a business park, and some five hundred people live in the old married quarters. The surviving military presence consists of the eastern Canadian Navy Cadets who gather to train here during the summer months. The Pearson Peacekeeping Centre (PPC) originated in Cornwallis and its headquarters remained there until 2009, when the courses and participants (sometimes representing 35 nations at once) together with the instructional staff, were relocated to Ottawa in 2005, and closed by a Conservative government in November 2013.

A group of local men and women struggled to maintain a place of remembrance to the sailors who trained there, the ships that were lost, to those who did not come home, as well as to the men and women from other service branches who arrived after unification.

They maintained HMCS/CFB Cornwallis Military Museum, located in what was the Protestant Chapel. Stained-glass windows in the museum were replicas of those that once graced that chapel during WWII, paid for by graduating classes (the originals now hang in the chapel at HMCS Stadacona in Halifax). Each window, save for four which are chapel-oriented, features the crest of a different ship, memorials to the twenty-four warships sunk during WWII. Artefacts were mainly donations from former trainees and from local people. The museum stood alone, existing on membership fees, donations, and a small admission charge. It was not considered a bonifide military museum because of government regulations which state that only museums on a current military base qualify for funding. Unfortunately, as the population of the old married quarters grew old, interest in the museum sagged and the museum closed, its artefacts distributed to existing museums across Canada

The first Sunday in May was a day was set aside in remembrance of the valiant struggle waged at sea throughout WWII. It honoured the RCN ships and Canadian merchant ships sunk in that conflict, and the men and women who trained here. Each year Battle of the Atlantic Day was celebrated in Cornwallis, one of the few such services held in Canada. Now, that is no longer celebrated, giving new meaning to the words Lest We Forget

Sadly, as with HMCS Cornwallis, the significance of the Battle of the Atlantic is now largely forgotten. Canadian history is so lacking in our schools and elsewhere that most adults and fewer students know little or nothing of it. Even in Nova Scotia there is little knowledge that places like Debert, Yarmouth, Halifax, Sydney, Shelburne, some quite important military or naval bases, played an important part in that Battle of Battles. Had it been lost Britain would have starved and occupied by Nazi Germany; arms requirements, the supplies to Russia via the northern ice-free port of Murmansk could not have continued. and most military campaigns which ended the war would have been difficult, if not impossible to carry out. Indeed, the makeup of the world as we know it might now be quite different.

HMCS Cornwallis played her part.

Messages of Gratitude

“My father was a resident at the Perley for several years and received the very best of care. Many thanks to all of the staff and volunteers, and especially to the staff of Rideau 1 South, for the extraordinary work that you do.”

I would like to thank you and your staff for your efforts.

My family and I feel you are all doing such a great job keeping us aware and feel blessed that our parents are both in living at the PRVHC especially during these extraordinary times.

Thank you very much,
Marie

A huge thank you to all of the cleaning and support staff for your hard work and dedication during this most challenging of years. Your efforts make a huge difference to the health and quality of life of the residents, staff and visitors at the Perley- Rideau and they are very much appreciated.

"Thank you for creating a compassionate place for Sheila's joyful spirit to flourish into being loving, peaceful and happy."

Thank you for the care you provide to patients and for the support you provide to families. #VeteransMatter

Thank you for taking care of Canada's Heros

In memoriam to (R)MWO Larry RCAF who passed away today. Thank you for taking care of a retired veteran, giving him dignity especially when afflicted by Parkinson's disease.

Thank you for all you do for our veterans! May God bless you.

A huge thank you to all of the cleaning and support staff for your hard work and dedication during this most challenging of years. Your efforts make a huge difference to the health and quality of life of the residents, staff and visitors at the Perley- Rideau and they are very much appreciated.

Today I share with you long time employee Lena has retired from her role as Rehabilitation Assistant within Therapeutic Recreation and Creative Arts after 30 plus years of service. I want to express my thanks to Lena for her long service to the Perley Rideau and for her positive impact she has had on residents and families. We congratulate Lena on her well deserved retirement and wish her well in her future endeavours.

Hello Samantha,

Yes, please forward this message along with our gratitude that there is even more of a legacy derived from how Dad lived during his last days. When his medicines were reduced and supplemented after your first engagement, we were blessed with gentle bonding time and experiences that were healing for all of us and indeed helps us along the road to being reconciled or more at ease with his passing even while we grieve.

Thank you and all your team sincerely

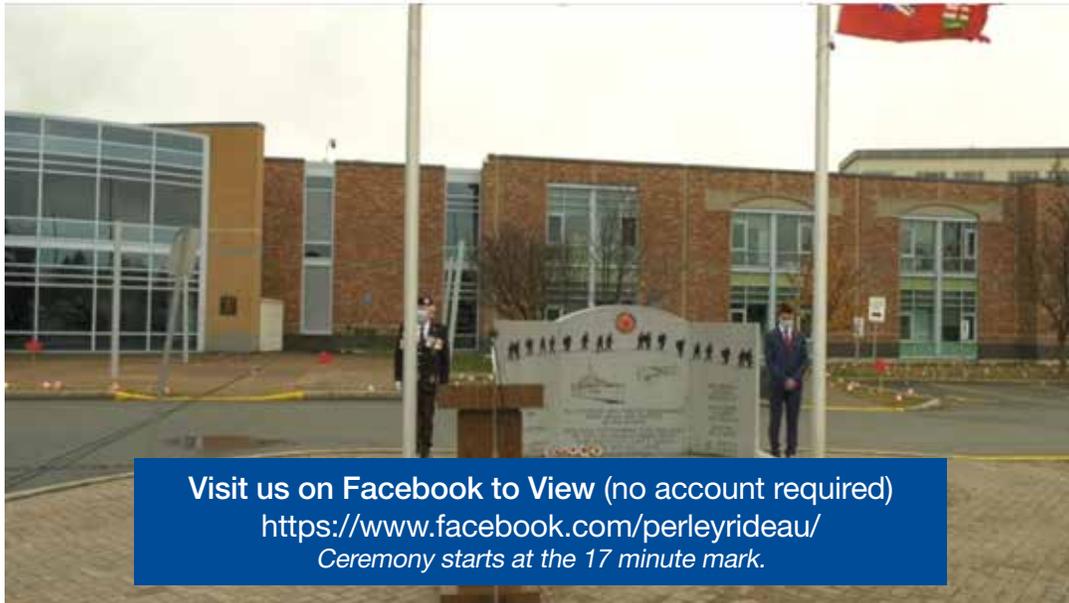

Rod

Save a space for me. You do great work and I know when my time comes, this next generation of Vets will have a place to be.
